

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides for the use of gallium compositions for the treatment of HIV. In particular, combination therapies are provided in which gallium is used to potentiate the effect of other antiviral drugs, such as nucleoside analogs.

For information only